"Seigneurs and Marquis de Rochepeule, de Rochebonne, de la Chau, de Montchal, de Faur, de Moira, de Chaminaide, de Masgre, de Laurerie. In Languedoc (in Vivarais and in Velay), and in Angoumois. The family originally from Velay, held an honorable rank in that province. The archives of the family which were conserved in their Castle at Rochepeule were dispersed and destroyed during the troubles, and civil wars of the 16th Century of which for a long time Languedoc was the centre. At this time, the castle and other principal houses were pillaged and burnt. The family were of ancient aristocracy, as is borne out by the position held by Jean Pinot Chevalier of Jerusalem, for to join the order of St. John, it was necessary to be descended by authenticated titles of 8 quarterings of their arms, both paternal and maternal."

Languedoc in the medieval times was a centre of civilised living. A Genealogy on which this document is based was prepared by Hippolyte Henri Pinot de Moira, and duly legalised and registered at Paris on the 2nd July 1846, and later found to be incorrect. We do not know at this time our connection if any with this noble family. This text taken from the registered genealogy.
